With 40 years experience in designing kitchens, bathrooms, offices, libraries and more, Cameo Kitchens owner Karl Keul has designed and remodeled kitchens for many luminaries in both political and corporate circles including Vice President, Dick Cheney and AOL founder, Jim Kinsey.

Most recently, Cameo Kitchens earned the distinction of Overall Excellence In Operating A Kitchen & Bath Dealership, an award presented by Kitchen & Bath Design News magazine. Cameo Kitchens also enjoys top ratings of both the Washingtonian and Luxury Homes magazines, and has been featured in numerous national publications.

Cameo Kitchens uses only Honey Brook Custom Cabinets, hand-crafted in Honey Brook, Pennsylvania by skilled Amish and Mennonite craftsmen. The cabinets are available in oak, maple, birch, pine or cherry. Since their establishment in 1985, Cameo Kitchens, Inc. has continuously been Honey Brook Custom Cabinets' highest volume dealer.

The goal was to include as much work space and seating as the clients required, while creating as much function and storage as they desired. Two large center islands serve as prep, baking and serving stations. The lengthy peninsula allows guests comfortable seating and an intimate audience with the cook. Providing a subtle barrier to the work zone, the second island becomes an entertainment area with adjacent recessed wine bar, liquor and glassware storage. Here buffets and hors d'oeuvres are staged and served. To complete the transformation, the homeowners brought in interior designer, Beth Kittrell, who helped with the selection process and creating the spicy palette of rich tones. ▼
